Virginia Tech

| Ages 13-18 | $20 | 9 am—4pm |

| June 26-29 | Registration + payment due June 14 |

The Reynolds Homestead Leadership Academy is a week long summer camp for high school students. Each day, participants will be challenged to discover new traits successful leaders embody, as well as things about their own particular personality and leadership styles. The week will include workshops, guest speakers and field trips. Taking the learning a step further, elements from the Low Ropes Challenge Course will be incorporated to provide the opportunity for participants to develop their own skills. Activities will encourage working as a team and learning hands on about skills such as collaboration, communication service and problem solving. The week will include a trip to a high ropes course and to a local zip line. Lunch and snacks will be provided daily.

The College Access Collaborative at Virginia Tech is sponsoring this camp, making it available for a deeply discounted rate of $20 per person. Not only is this an opportunity for growth and fun, it'll look great on a resume or college application.

Registration is required and is due with payment by June 14, 2017.
